

WASHINGTON HUSTLING

straight to the heart of things and did not equivocate, but if Mr. Root has a liking for the methods of a Talleyrand or a Metternich there is no law obliging him to observe American traditions. And there is ever present, of course, the possibility that we may be doing Mr. Root great injustice. If his statement was intended to quiet the turbulent patriots to the south of us, it will probably serve the purpose. They will be kept so busy trying to figure out what Mr. Root intended they should think he meant that they will forget their personal differences. We have all heard of adventurers who escaped filling cannibalistic stomachs because of the mystery their watches or bottles of smelling salts presented to the heathen mind. May it not be that Mr. Root in his wisdom devised this puzzle to amuse the misbehaving child rather than apply the chastening rod? Let us accept the advice which Capt. Sigbee gave when the Maine blew up in Havana harbor and suspend judgment, at least until the language vivisectionists have done with the Root pronouncement.

Two years ago the Hon. "Jim" Tawney, of Minnesota, now chairman of the "House Committee on Appropriations and Speaker Cannon's legislative right hand," predicted that Missouri would go Republican. They laughed at Tawney, and poked all sorts of fun at his prognosticating optimism. But Missouri went Republican.

Well, Tawney is in town again, and has brought his optimism with him. "I believe we will hold every seat we have in the House now from Missouri," said Mr. Tawney, "and we may gain one. It is practically certain that we will not lose more than one seat anyhow, and the chances are mighty good that we will make a gain of one from that State. Representative De Armond, one of the principal Democrats in the House, may not be a member of the next House."

Mr. De Armond had a hard fight for his seat two years ago, and was re-elected by less than 1,100 votes. The Republicans for some time have quietly expressed the belief that it would be possible, this year, to retire this veteran, who has seen continuous service since the Fifty-second Congress. Should Mr. De Armond be defeated, Champ Clark, who has been here since the Fifty-third Congress, will be the last remnant of the Democratic old guard of Missouri. Concerning Minnesota, his own State, Mr. Tawney said: "We will elect a solid Republican delegation, and the Republicans, also, will elect the Governor, retiring the Democratic incumbent elected two years ago and making the race for a second term."

Mr. Tawney also predicted that the Republicans would break into Arkansas by sending one Republican from that State to the House. Just in what district he expects to make this remarkable gain Mr. Tawney did not say, and his reply to incredulous expressions over his prediction was the injunction to wait and see."

In Pennsylvania, Mr. Tawney admitted the probable loss of three or four districts; three in Ohio, and "a few" in Illinois. In Iowa he conceded one doubtful district. Mr. Tawney said the Congressional situation was altogether satisfactory, and while it was never expected that the present overwhelming majority would be returned, the working majority in the House, he declared, would be much larger than man anticipated.

Mr. Tawney talked with President Roosevelt, and passers-by could not help but see that things around the white house has taken on a rosy hue. When Chairman Sherman, of the Republican Congressional campaign committee, called at the White House shortly after the departure of Mr. Tawney, he found the President serene and smiling. There were no clouds on the political horizon visible to the Presidential eye. Carkling care was busy at Mr. Sherman's vitals when he entered the White House portals but he came forth a changed man. An amazed reporter asked Mr. Sherman what in the world the President had said to him.

"To be perfectly frank about it," responded the Republican manager, "I came here to talk over various features of the campaign with the President. Fortunately for the party and the people, he is taking a lively interest in the coming election, and the fact that he is doing so is helping us immensely in all parts of the country."

"You do not think, then, that his influence with the masses is on the wane?"

"Not a bit of it. On the contrary, I am in receipt daily of evidences that his manifest interest in the campaign stimulates activity in the rank and file as effectually to-day as it ever did."

The people, particularly the plain people, have the same implicit confidence in his judgment and sagacity that they have always had in his courage and sincerity."

"If that is so, then there cannot be much room to doubt the result?"

"None in the least. We shall carry the House by a substantial majority, and I am quite willing to risk whatever reputation I may have as a prophet upon that prediction."

"How about New York?"

"In any opinion, Mr. Hughes will be elected. He has the advantage that only comes once in a political lifetime—he is a new man. He has a magnetic personality, a captivating voice, is a splendid speaker, and a good mixer. And the people believe he has the courage to probe and the genius to remedy whatever is wrong in existing conditions. I cannot see how any combination can beat him."

It is only fair to say that Mr. Sherman does not speak for the entire Republican party in his confidence that Mr. Hughes will be the next governor of the Empire State.

"Willie" Hearst, as they used to call him in the days before the Hon. William Randolph Hearst arrived, is causing Republican leaders more uneasiness just now than all the rest of the Democratic party combined.

Called by the exigencies of the occasion forth from the dignified precincts of the State Department, Secretary Root is to take the stump and make at least one speech in New York. Strenuous efforts are making to secure the President himself as a hustling attraction. So far they have been unsuccessful, but Mr. Roosevelt may decide to write a letter. It will be remembered that he wrote one to Congressman Watson, of Indiana, at the beginning of the Congressional campaign, and the precedents should not bar him from doing as much for his home State.

In the meantime, Republican orators in all parts of the country are holding up Mr. Hearst as a raw-head-and-bloody-bones for the purpose of keeping timid voters awake at night.
